20th CENTURY EUROPE: INCLUSIONS/EXCLUSIONS
Gender, Ethnicity, Class and Age

Welcome to the Conference of the European Sociological Association.

We shall be examining continuing processes of inclusion and exclusion at the end of the millennium, and the contributions by sociologists to understanding new developments in Europe. Increased integration in the West related to the revitalised project of the European Union, as well as the fall of the wall between East and West create new possibilities and opportunities; while social exclusion linked to class, gender, ethnic and age related inequalities pose new challenges for interpretation and analysis.

The renewed pace of globalisation positions Europe differently in the global system with complex consequences. New European institutions, including the European Union, seek to address these new concerns, themselves generating unintended consequences.

The conference will consider whether concepts of ‘social exclusion’ help to analyse new and old inequalities and the interconnections between work, welfare and citizenship or whether re-visiting classical theory is a more creative route.

This is the third Conference of European Sociology, following on from those in Vienna in 1992 and Budapest in 1995, where over 600 sociologists from over 30 countries participated. The European Sociological Association was formally established at the conference in Budapest and has over 600 members.

The ESA is both a traditional organisation organising face-to-face conferences, as well as a ‘virtual society’ of sociologists via its email discussions. We have a set of research networks which we expect will grow as a result of discussion in working groups during the conference.

We hope that you will find the conference a creative intellectual space and join us in the future.

Sylvia Walby

European Sociological Association
WELCOME FROM THE ESA-UNIVERSITY OF ESSEX
LOCAL CONFERENCE COMMITTEE

WELCOME to the Third Conference of the European Sociological Conference, and to the University of Essex.

The theme for this year’s conference, “Inclusion/Exclusion” reflects issues of increasing concern in Europe, and represents a dominant interest among both academics and policy makers in the 1990s. It is also a theme which is at the core of teaching and research activities in the Department of Sociology at Essex. We hope the conference will contribute to both its conceptual clarification and empirical documentation, and generate many productive debates within European sociology.

We are expecting 700 delegates to the conference. Most of you will be housed in the ‘Houses’ - the newest accommodation at Essex. The Essex campus is a product of the 1960s, and although it initially looks like a concrete maze, once you get used to the idea that most of the teaching rooms are built out from the five Squares - with Square 5 being the furthest from the front of the building (and containing the Library, Bookshop and Theatre), you will soon find your way around. There will be student helpers to guide you.

We hope you have a stimulating and enjoyable conference. Please forgive our inevitable errors in the Programme and book of Abstracts.

Joan Busfield, Stina Lyon, Lydia Morris, Carlo Ruzza, John Scott, Nigel South.

Biographical Details

ARCHER, MARGARET
'Revisiting Classical Theory: The morphogenesis of inclusion/exclusion'

Studied sociology to doctoral level at the London School of Economics, before moving to the Ecole Pratique des Hautes Etudes, Paris. She became Professor of Sociology at the University of Warwick in 1979. Her previous ten books include, Social Origins of Educational Systems (1979), Culture and Agency (1988) and Realist Social Theory: the Morphogenetic Approach (1995). The latter two are part of a trilogy which will be completed by Human Being. She is a former editor of Current Sociology and Chair of the ISA's Publications Committee. From 1986 to 1990, she was President of the International Sociological Association and was the first woman to be elected to this position. She is the only British member and a Counsellor of the newly founded Pontificia Academy of Social Sciences and is charged with its publications. In 1997 she became a founding trustee of the Centre for Critical Realism, which will hold its inaugural conference at Warwick, 29-31st August, immediately after the ESA meeting.

AS. BERIT
'Cracks in the Techno-Economic Armour: The female spirit breaks out'

Author Berit As is professor emeritus of Social Psychology at the University of Oslo and a founder of the Feminist University in Norway. She was also the first female party leader in the Norwegian Parliament. A prolific writer and communicator, Professor As has been the guest at many universities and lecturers widely on liberation strategies, leadership and gender and language. Her techniques of emancipation are translated into several languages. Among her publications are Kvinner i alle land: Handbok i frigjoring (Women unite: handbook for liberation (1981 Aschehoug)) The Weak Consumer (on consumer economics) (in Norwegian) "A Feminist University in Norway" (1996, in Radically Speaking: Feminism Reclaimed ed. by D. Bell and R. Klein) 'Cultural barriers against equality' (in Swedish) (1994) and the pamphlet 'Five Master Suppression Techniques'. Forthcoming is the article 'Gender, Language and Power: when women and men talk and understand the world differently' to appear in ATLANTIS.

BAUBOECK, RAINER
'Reinventing Citizenship: Multiple memberships and egalitarian base lines'

Trained in Sociology and Political Science, Rainer Bauboeck is now Assistant Professor at the Institute for Advanced Studies in Vienna and lectures at the universities of Vienna and Innsbruck. Since 1993 he has been a Research Affiliate of the European Centre for Social Welfare Policy and Research and he co-edits the Austrian Journal of Political Science. Recently he has pursued his interests in normative political theory and issues of citizenship, migration, ethnicity and nationalism, resulting in publications such as Transnational Citizenship, Membership and Rights in International Migration (1994 Edward Elgar). He edited From Aliens to Citizens: Redefining the Legal Status of Immigrants in Europe (1994 Avebury) and The Challenge of Diversity: Integration and pluralism in societies of immigration (1996 edited with Agnes Heller and Aristide Zolberg, Avebury).

BERTAUX, DANIEL
Next Game: Global Players and Associates versus the Rest of the World?

Daniel Bertaux is Director of Research at the French Centre Nationale de la Recherche Scientifique in Paris. His focus of research has been class mobility and class structure and he has developed the methodology of the life history and life story to analyse processes of social change and mobility. An active international sociologist, he has been a Fellow of the Princeton Institute for Advanced Study and an officer of the ISA where he founded the Worldwide competition for Young Sociologists. He taught at universities including Paris VII, Montreal, Laval at Quebec, Barcelone, Graz and Rio de Janeiro. Among his major publications reflecting his research interests are Destins personnels et structure de classe (PUF 1977), La Mobilité Sociale (1985) and Pathways to Social Class (OUP 1997-collaboration), as well as editing Biography and Society (Sage 1981). Most recently he has published the monograph Les récits de vie dans la perspective ethnologique (Nathan 1997) and describes his present work as the study of the political economy of the production of human beings themselves-anthropometry.

BORNCHIE, VOLKER
'European Processes and the State of the European Union'

Volker Bornschier is Director of the Sociological Institute of the University of Zurich and Professor of Sociology there. A global traveller, he has been President of the World Society Foundation sponsoring social science research world-wide from 1983-1996 as well as a prolific author. Among his twelve books and numerous articles, the following are especially relevant for his work on European processes and globalization: Western Societies in Transition (1996, Transaction Publishers) and the two forthcoming volumes The Future of Hegemonic Rivalry (with C. Chase-Dunn, Sage) and Statebuilding in Europe: The Revitalization of the Integration in the 1980's, which builds on his team's research on European integration, as well as 'Zivilisierung Weltsellschaft trotz Hegemonie der Marktgemeinschaft?' in Frieden machen (1997, Suhrkamp, D. Senghass, ed.).

DAHLERUP, DRUDE

Cold War
- clan: division of labor
- nominalist direction

- class/status/stage of life
- (party) authority = 3 aspects of stratification
- power

Social class/social estate
5 class situations (determinants of life chances) clustered together into strata (classes)

What is a class society?
= more class is the major determinant
5 questions:
- are there class situations, and are they the most important determinants of life chances?
- are there broad economic categories of life chances that can be grouped together? ("nominal")
- are they clustered together in demographic terms (mobility...

empirical? "real" classes)
- are members characterized by clan awareness?

(common characteristics)
- do conscious social clans form the basis of social movements? (collective movements)

1-3: the answer is positive.
4/5: different - here is the central theme for the "death of clan" argument.
Statistics are becoming more important
(researching of the relation between clan and status)
- decreasing identity based on work
- growing influence of consumer/lifestyle identities
- gender and ethnic identities
- personal and sexual identities

A clan in material terms is not dead — but the effects on awareness and movements are.

Statifications and power
Working class — communities, industrial cores

Unemployment

47% of the population has had some experience of unemployment.

EU unemployment by gender (and age)

Social tolerance in the face of unemployment.

Precarious employment / underemployment (people who declare that they would like to work more)

→ exclusion?
→ segmentation?
→ new inequalities?
